

Submission from Max NG

It is a very good suggestion. The home safety could definitely be enhanced irrespective the types of occupants. Such detectors are already very common in the other countries and evidence shows that they save lives. Hope the government could introduce this measure to the members of public as soon as possible.